

Special Education Administrator Receives Distinguished Beacon Award

February 13, 2003, Waterford, Mich. - The Michigan Association of Special Education Administrators (SESOM) awarded Kingsley Montgomery Principal Mark Francis with the distinguished Beacon Award.

The Beacon Award recognizes individuals who have demonstrated excellence in the administration of Special Education in Michigan. The award is given to administrators who work in local and intermediate school districts throughout the State. Recipients of this award meet the following criteria: actively involved with SESOM; demonstrated quality service in the field of special education; leader who has affected change in their district; proactive risk-taker; good communicator and listener; and a visionary who values human resources.

Francis joined the Waterford School District, as a social worker, in 1985 and became a principal in 1995. He holds a bachelor and masters degree from Wayne State University.
