Waterford Kettering Principal Josh Wenning Named 2008 Citizen of the Year

February 7, 2008, Waterford, Mich. – Waterford Kettering Principal Josh Wenning was awarded the 2008 Citizen of the Year by the Waterford Coalition for Youth. Wenning was nominated by a parent for his commitment to Waterford families. He was recognized at Waterford Kettering High School for demonstrating collaborative efforts and support of students and staff on numerous initiatives such as: Challenge Day, Rachel's Challenge, Captains Crew, Seminar, Professional Learning Communities, Holiday Collage Concert, advanced placement opportunities, and the award winning band, orchestra, choir, yearbook, journalism, DECA, and robotics student groups.

The parent who nominated Wenning says it is because of “his true commitment to Waterford families. He is a wonderful citizen and role model for our community. He attends almost every function at Kettering and is always showing his support and respect for those he leads.”

Wenning joined the Waterford School District in 2002 as assistant principal of Kettering High School. Prior to joining the Waterford School District, Wenning taught social studies at Oxford High School. Wenning received his Bachelors Degree from Indiana University and completed his Masters Degree in Education from Indiana Wesleyan University. He received a Masters Degree in Administration from Michigan State University and is currently pursuing his Education Specialist Degree at Oakland University.
